

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

KEVIN YAN LUIS, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

V.

Wilson Sporting Goods Co.,

Defendant.

Case no. 1:22-cv-03307-VSB

FIRST AMENDED CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT AND DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

INTRODUCTION

1. Plaintiff, KEVIN YAN LUIS (“Plaintiff” or “YAN LUIS”), brings this action on behalf of himself and all other persons similarly situated against Wilson Sporting Goods Co. (hereinafter “Wilson” or “Defendant”), and states as follows:
2. Plaintiff is a visually-impaired and legally blind person who requires screen-reading software to read website content using his computer. Plaintiff uses the terms “blind” or “visually-impaired” to refer to all people with visual impairments who meet the legal definition of blindness in that they have a visual acuity with correction of less than or equal to 20 x 200. Some blind people who meet this definition have limited vision; others have no vision.
3. Based on a 2010 U.S. Census Bureau report, approximately 8.1 million people in the United States are visually impaired, including 2.0 million who are blind, and according to the American

Foundation for the Blind's 2015 report, approximately 400,000 visually impaired persons live in the State of New York.

4. Plaintiff brings this civil rights action against Wilson for their failure to design, construct, maintain, and operate their website to be fully accessible to and independently usable by Plaintiff and other blind or visually-impaired persons. Defendant is denying blind and visually impaired persons throughout the United States with equal access to the goods and services Wilson provides to their non-disabled customers through <https://www.Wilson.com> (hereinafter "Wilson.com" or "the website"). Defendants' denial of full and equal access to its website, and therefore denial of its products and services offered, and in conjunction with its physical locations, is a violation of Plaintiff's rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act (the "ADA").
5. Wilson.com provides to the public a wide array of the goods, services, price specials and other programs offered by Wilson. Yet, Wilson.com contains thousands of access barriers that make it difficult if not impossible for blind and visually-impaired customers to use the website. In fact, the access barriers make it impossible for blind and visually-impaired users to even complete a transaction on the website. Thus, Wilson excludes the blind and visually-impaired from the full and equal participation in the growing Internet economy that is increasingly a fundamental part of the common marketplace and daily living. In the wave of technological advances in recent years, assistive computer technology is becoming an increasingly prominent part of everyday life, allowing blind and visually-impaired persons to fully and independently access a variety of services.
6. Plaintiff browsed and attempted to transact business on Defendant's website, www.wilson.com, on April 14, 2022. The reasons Plaintiff visited the Website were to, inter alia:

(i) purchase sports gear (included but not limited to baseball gloves and cleats), sporting apparel, and clothes; and (ii) understand the different descriptions for the products offered on the Website in order to complete a purchase by, for instance, listening to audio descriptions of the images of the products sold on the Website. However, technical limitations on the site prevented him from determining where the desired products were on the webpage, what the descriptions and differences of varied baseball gloves were, and how to complete a check out of an item.

7. Plaintiff was unable to transact business or successfully complete any of the above actions because the Website was not compliant with the current ADA accessibility standards. The Website contained/contains specific issues both at the time Plaintiff browsed the website and as of the date of the filing of this action.

8. Plaintiff further intends to purchase baseball equipment and sporting apparel in the future from the Website, but cannot. Since Defendant's Website is/was not equally accessible to Plaintiff and other blind and visually-impaired consumers in New York as it is/was to standard New York consumers, the Website violates the ADA.

9. Plaintiff seeks a permanent injunction to cause a change in Wilson's policies, practices, and procedures to that Defendant's website will become and remain accessible to blind and visually-impaired consumers. This complaint also seeks compensatory damages to compensate Class members for having been subjected to unlawful discrimination.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

10. This Court has subject-matter jurisdiction over this action under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 and 42 U.S.C. § 12181, as Plaintiff's claims arise under Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12181, et seq., and 28 U.S.C. § 1332. This Court also has supplemental jurisdiction over pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367, over Plaintiff's pendent claims under the New York State Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. Law, Article 15 (Executive Law § 290 et seq.) and the New York City Human Rights Law, N.Y.C. Administrative Code § 8-101 et seq. ("City Law").
11. Venue is proper in this District of New York pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b)(c) and 144(a) because Defendant conducts and continues to conduct a substantial and significant amount of business in this District, and a substantial portion of the conduct complained of herein occurred in this District because Plaintiff attempted to utilize, on a number of occasions, the subject Website within this Judicial District. Specifically, Plaintiff attempted to utilize and transact business on Defendant's website while at a relative's home in Bronx County.
12. Defendant is registered to do business in New York State and has been conducting business in New York State, including in this District. Moreover, Defendant's self-labeled "flagship store" location is located within this District, in New York County. Defendant purposefully targets and otherwise solicits business from New York State residents through its website and sells its products through many retailers in this District, including its own locations in this District. Because of this targeting, it is not unusual for Wilson to conduct business with New York State residents. Defendant also has been and is committing the acts alleged herein in this District and has been and is violating the rights of consumers in this District and has been and is causing injury to consumers in this District. A substantial part of the act and omissions giving rise to Plaintiff's claims have occurred in this District. Most courts support the placement of venue in the district in which Plaintiff tried and failed to access the Website. In Access Now, Inc. v.

Otter Products, LLC 280 F.Supp.3d 287 (D. Mass. 2017), Judge Patti B. Saris ruled that “although the website may have been created and operated outside of the district, the attempts to access the website in Massachusetts are part of the sequence of events underlying the claim. Therefore, venue is proper in [the District of Massachusetts].” Otter Prods., 280 F.Supp.3d at 294. This satisfies Due Process because the harm – the barred access to the website – occurred here.” Otter Prods., 280 F.Supp.3d at 293.

Additionally, in Access Now, Inc. v. Sportswear, Inc., No. 17-cv-11211-NMG, 2018 Dist. LEXIS 47318 (D. Mass. Mar. 22, 2018), Judge Nathaniel M. Gorton stated that the defendant “availed itself of the forum state’s economic activities by targeting the residents of the Commonwealth . . . Such targeting evinces a voluntary attempt to appeal to the customer base in the forum.” Sportswear, No. 1:17-cv-11211-NMG, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47318 at *11. Thus, establishing a customer base in a particular district is sufficient cause for venue placement.

PARTIES

13. Plaintiff, is and has been at all relevant times a resident of Kings County, State of New York.
14. Plaintiff is legally blind and a member of a protected class under the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12102(l)-(2), the regulations implementing the ADA set forth at 28 CFR §§ 36.101 et seq., the New York State Human Rights Law and the New York City Human Rights Law. Plaintiff, KEVIN YAN LUIS, cannot use a computer without the assistance of screen reader software. Plaintiff, KEVIN YAN LUIS, has been denied the full enjoyment of the facilities, goods and services of Wilson.com as a result of accessibility barriers on Wilson.com.

15. Defendant, Wilson Sporting Goods Co., is a Delaware Corporation doing business in this State with its principal place of business located at 130 East Randolph Street, 1 Prudential Plaza, Suite 600, Chicago, Illinois 60601.
16. Wilson provides to the public a website known as Wilson.com which provides consumers with access to an array of goods and services, including, the ability to view the various clothing, sporting goods, athletic gear, and other products on the website, and make purchases, among other features. Consumers across the United States and the world use Defendant's website to purchase sporting goods and other products. Defendant's website is a place of public accommodation within the definition of Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12181(7). See Victor Andrews v. Blick Art Materials, LLC, No. 17-cv-767, 2017 WL 3278898 (E.D.N.Y. August 1, 2017). The inaccessibility of Wilson.com has deterred Plaintiff from making an online purchase of a desktop keyboard.

NATURE OF THE CASE

17. The Internet has become a significant source of information, a portal, and a tool for conducting business, doing everyday activities such as shopping, learning, banking, researching, as well as many other activities for sighted, blind and visually-impaired persons alike.
18. The blind access websites by using keyboards in conjunction with screen-reading software which vocalizes visual information on a computer screen. Except for a blind person whose residual vision is still sufficient to use magnification, screen access software provides the only method by which a blind person can independently access the Internet. Unless websites are designed to allow for use in this manner, blind persons are unable to fully access Internet websites and the information, products and services contained therein.

19. For screen-reading software to function, the information on a website must be capable of being rendered into text. If the website content is not capable of being rendered into text, the blind user is unable to access the same content available to sighted users.
20. Blind users of Windows operating system-enabled computers and devices have several screen-reading software programs available to them. Job Access With Speech, otherwise known as “JAWS”, is currently the most popular, separately purchase and downloaded screen-reading software program available for blind computer users.
21. The international website standards organization, the World Wide Web Consortium, known throughout the world as W3C, has published version 2.1 of the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (“WCAG 2.1”). WCAG 2.1 are well-established guidelines for making websites accessible to blind and visually-impaired persons. These guidelines are universally followed by most large business entities and government agencies to ensure their websites are accessible. Many Courts have also established WCAG 2.1 as the standard guideline for accessibility. The federal government has also promulgated website accessibility standards under Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act. These guidelines are readily available via the Internet, so that a business designing a website can easily access them. These guidelines recommend several basic components for making websites accessible, including but not limited to: adding invisible alt-text to graphics, ensuring that all functions can be performed using a keyboard and not just a mouse, ensuring that image maps are accessible, and adding headings so that blind persons can easily navigate the site. Without these very basic components, a website will be inaccessible to a blind person using a screen reader. Websites need to be accessible to the “least sophisticated” user of screen-reading software and need to be able to work with all browsers. Websites need to be continually updated and maintained to ensure that they remain fully accessible.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

22. Defendant controls and operates Wilson.com in New York State and throughout the United States.

23. Wilson.com is a commercial website that offers products and services for online sale. The online store allows the user to view the various types of sporting goods and apparel, make purchases, and perform a variety of other functions.

24. Among the features offered by Wilson.com are the following:

(a) an online store, allowing customers to purchase various clothing, sporting goods, athletic gear,

(b) Learning about shipping and return policies, reading reviews, and learning about the company, amongst other features.

27. This case arises out of Wilson's policy and practice of denying the blind access to the goods and services offered by Wilson.com. Due to Wilson's failure and refusal to remove access barriers to Wilson.com, blind individuals have been and are being denied equal access to Wilson, as well as to the numerous goods, services and benefits offered to the public through Wilson.com.

28. Wilson denies the blind access to goods, services and information made available through Wilson.com by preventing them from freely navigating Wilson.com.

29. Wilson.com contains access barriers that prevent free and full use by Plaintiff and blind persons using keyboards and screen-reading software. These barriers are pervasive and include, but are not limited to: lack of alt-text on graphics, inaccessible drop-down menus, inaccurate navigation links, the lack of adequate prompting and labeling, the denial of keyboard access for some interactive elements, redundant links where adjacent links go to the same URL address, and the requirement that transactions be performed solely with a mouse.
30. Alternative text (“Alt-text”) is invisible code embedded beneath a graphical image on a website. Web accessibility requires that alt-text be coded with each picture so that a screen-reader can speak the alternative text while sighted users see the picture. Alt-text does not change the visual presentation except that it appears as a text pop-up when the mouse moves over the picture. There are many important pictures on Wilson.com that lack a text equivalent. The lack of alt-text on these graphics prevents screen readers from accurately vocalizing a description of the graphics (screen-readers detect and vocalize alt-text to provide a description of the image to a blind computer user). As a result, Plaintiff and blind Wilson.com customers are unable to determine what is on the website, browse the website or investigate and/or make purchases.
31. Wilson.com also lacks prompting information and accommodations necessary to allow blind shoppers who use screen-readers to locate and accurately fill-out online forms. Due to lack of adequate labeling, Plaintiff and blind customers cannot make purchases or inquiries as to Defendant’s merchandise, nor can they enter their personal identification and financial information with confidence and security.
32. When visiting the Website, Plaintiff, using JAWS, encountered the following specific accessibility issues unique to Wilson.com:

- a) The lack of clear and descriptive alternative text for images on the home page prevented Plaintiff from making an exhaustive impression about the products that Plaintiff ultimately intended to buy. The description of images did not provide any specific detail.
- b) Plaintiff tried to complete Checkout procedure and found that different images of the same product had similar and poorly descriptive alternative text. The similar alternative text impeded Plaintiff from learning more detailed information about the product;
- c) Heading hierarchy on the website was not properly defined, and what is to emphasize, was incorrectly defined on the “Terms and conditions of use” page: there was missing heading level <h2> between level <h1> and <h3>. As a result, heading hierarchy was unclear and Plaintiff could not determine the logical structure of “Terms and conditions of use” page, rendering the terms and conditions of use unintelligible to Plaintiff;
- d) Heading role on the home page was applied to the inappropriate element. Blank element had no description and was redundantly indicated as heading. Headings should be used to break up the page content into sections of information and are intended for structural purposes only, not to decorate text or create emphasis. As a result, Plaintiff could not scan the home page quickly for the content of interest and was forced to read it in detail;
- e) More than one heading level 1 was used per page. Heading level 1 provides important indication of what the page is about and outlines its content. Using more than one <h1> is allowed by the HTML specification, but is not considered beneficial for screen reader users. Screen reader users use keyboard shortcuts to navigate directly to the <h1>, and if the <h1> appears somewhere other than at the start of the main content, screen reader users must listen to more of the web page content to understand its overcomplicated structure.

f) “Skip to content” link on the Checkout page led to another page. Plaintiff could not determine the reason of the change of the context and was unable to complete Checkout procedure;

g) “Skip to content” link was inaccurately implemented on the web site. When Plaintiff intended to skip the Navigation menu and activated bypass block element, it did not move keyboard focus to the main content, Plaintiff being forced to tab through all the of the Navigation region links;

h) The website did not preserve correct keyboard tabbing (reading) order. While trying to use Search bar Plaintiff could not close it, as it was included in the reading order that was different from the version of the page for sighted customers;

i) Several links (“Customize now”, etc. on the home page) had ambiguous texts that were unclear to Plaintiff. Lack of detailed description of the link target and destination page made it difficult for Plaintiff to perceive the purpose of the link;

j) On the home page, Plaintiff encountered interactive images of the products (“tennis racket”, “ball”) that were used as links and did not describe the content of the link target. There were no details what kind of information can be found on the destination page;

k) Links led to another websites (“ATEC”, “Luxilon”, etc.), and they did not indicate that they were external. Plaintiff was disoriented on another website. The link text failed to warn legally blind customers about the significant change of the context;

l) Plaintiff was disoriented when the automatic Email Subscription pop-up window appeared on the web page. Plaintiff, as a legally blind user, has a significant difficulty knowing when automatic visual context change has occurred, such as a new window popping up;

m) Plaintiff tried to follow links from the Footer region and received no prior warning that the links opened a new window. As a result, Plaintiff unsuccessfully tried to use the “Back” function of the browser to go to the previous page and found was disoriented;

n) Plaintiff made attempt to complete Checkout procedure but encountered ambiguous notes/comments for “Email Address” and “Phone Number” that were not accessible for the screen reader software;

o) Multiple interactive elements on the website, such as “list of one item” button on the home page, Search button, “black” button, “clickable”, etc. on the Product page, had poor and non-descriptive names. Plaintiff could not identify the purpose of the interactive elements;

p) A lot of interactive elements on the Products and Product detail pages had no defined “role” and “name” attributes, such as Rating, Color options elements. Plaintiff was not informed about purpose and destination of the elements. And more importantly, Footer elements, specifically “About Us”, “Our Sites”, “More Ways to Shop” categories had incorrect “role” as “buttons”. Such inappropriate “roles” confused Plaintiff;

q) The Navigation menu had elements with drop-down menu, and they did not announce their state - “collapsed” or “expanded”. As a result, Plaintiff had difficulty in navigating the menu and could not determine in which part of the sub-menu the keyboard focus was located;

r) Plaintiff encountered a complex drop-down lists in the Navigation menu (“Mega menus”). It did not announce the total number of sub-menus and the number of links included in each of them. As a result, Plaintiff did not have full information regarding the drop-down menu and was not informed about the variety of categories he might have selected;

s) Non-interactive elements, specifically “blank” separators/dividers on the home and, more importantly, on “Terms of use” pages were marked up as keyboard focusable elements, and Plaintiff could not determine the purpose of the elements, since they were not actually interactive (did not have appropriate “role” attribute). Furthermore, tabbing through the additional focusable elements required extra efforts and time from Plaintiff to find content of interest on the website;

t) In attempt to add the selected item to cart, Plaintiff encountered no confirmation messages that would be announced by the screen reader software. Plaintiff was not informed whether the selected product was successfully added to Cart, even though sighted customers had visually rendered confirmation;

Consequently, blind customers are essentially prevented from purchasing any items on Wilson.com.

33. Wilson.com requires the use of a mouse to complete a transaction. Yet, it is a fundamental tenet of web accessibility that for a web page to be accessible to Plaintiff and blind people, it must be possible for the user to interact with the page using only the keyboard. Indeed, Plaintiff and blind users cannot use a mouse because manipulating the mouse is a visual activity of moving the mouse pointer from one visual spot on the page to another. Thus, Wilson.com’s inaccessible design, which requires the use of a mouse to complete a transaction, denies Plaintiff and blind customers the ability to independently navigate and/or make purchases on Wilson.com.

34. Due to Wilson.com’s inaccessibility, Plaintiff and blind customers must in turn spend time, energy, and/or money to make their purchases at traditional brick-and mortar retailers. Some blind customers may require a driver to get to the stores or require assistance in navigating the stores. By contrast, if Wilson.com was accessible, a blind person could independently investigate products and make purchases via the Internet as sighted individuals can and do. According to WCAG 2.1 Guideline 3.2.1 “On Focus”, functionality of the components should be predictable as customers navigate their way through the website. Plaintiff encountered numerous obstacles on Wilson.com: links that open new windows without prior warning. These obstacles can significantly disorient legally blind customers. Plaintiff had difficulty in determining when the unexpected change in visual context occurred on the website. Thus, Wilson.com has inaccessible design that deprives the Plaintiff and blind customers of the opportunity to make purchases on Wilson.com on their own.

35. Wilson.com thus contains access barriers which deny the full and equal access to Plaintiff, who would otherwise use Wilson.com and who would otherwise be able to fully and equally enjoy the benefits and services of Wilson.com in New York State and throughout the United States.
36. Plaintiff, KEVIN YAN LUIS, has made numerous attempts to complete a purchase on Wilson.com, most recently on June 29, 2022, but was unable to do so independently because of the many access barriers on Defendant’s website. These access barriers have caused Wilson.com to be inaccessible to, and not independently usable by, blind and visually-impaired persons. Amongst other access barriers experienced, Plaintiff was unable to make an online purchase of a desktop keyboard.
37. Moreover, Plaintiff intends on visiting the Website in the future in order to make additional potential purchases of baseball gloves, cleats, sporting apparel, and clothing from Wilson.com. Plaintiff has regularly enjoyed Wilson products in the past, noting Wilson’s quality and wide array of sporting equipment as reasons for enjoying their products. Plaintiff also is an avid baseball player, and would like to order Wilson baseball equipment to be shipped directly to his home from wilson.com in the near future, once the website is made accessible.

38. As described above, Plaintiff has actual knowledge of the fact that Defendant's website, Wilson.com, contains access barriers causing the website to be inaccessible, and not independently usable by, blind and visually-impaired persons.

39. These barriers to access have denied Plaintiff full and equal access to, and enjoyment of, the goods, benefits and services of Wilson.com.

40. Defendant engaged in acts of intentional discrimination, including but not limited to the following policies or practices:

(a) constructed and maintained a website that is inaccessible to blind class members with knowledge of the discrimination; and/or

(b) constructed and maintained a website that is sufficiently intuitive and/or obvious that is inaccessible to blind class members; and/or

(c) failed to take actions to correct these access barriers in the face of substantial harm and discrimination to blind class members.

41. Defendant utilizes standards, criteria or methods of administration that have the effect of discriminating or perpetuating the discrimination of others.

42. Because of Defendant's denial of full and equal access to, and enjoyment of, the goods, benefits and services of Wilson.com, Plaintiff and the class have suffered an injury-in-fact which is concrete and particularized and actual and is a direct result of defendant's conduct.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

43. Plaintiff, on behalf of himself and all others similarly situated, seeks certification of the following nationwide class pursuant to Rule 23(a) and 23(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure: “all legally blind individuals in the United States who have attempted to access Wilson.com and as a result have been denied access to the enjoyment of goods and services offered by Wilson.com, during the relevant statutory period.”
44. Plaintiff seeks certification of the following New York subclass pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 23(a), 23(b)(2), and, alternatively, 23(b)(3): “all legally blind individuals in New York State who have attempted to access Wilson.com and as a result have been denied access to the enjoyment of goods and services offered by Wilson.com, during the relevant statutory period.”
45. There are hundreds of thousands of visually-impaired persons in New York State. There are approximately 8.1 million people in the United States who are visually-impaired. Id. Thus, the persons in the class are so numerous that joinder of all such persons is impractical and the disposition of their claims in a class action is a benefit to the parties and to the Court.
46. This case arises out of Defendant’s policy and practice of maintaining an inaccessible website denying blind persons access to the goods and services of Wilson.com. Due to Defendant’s policy and practice of failing to remove access barriers, blind persons have been and are being denied full and equal access to independently browse, select and shop on Wilson.com.
47. There are common questions of law and fact common to the class, including without limitation, the following:

- (a) Whether Wilson.com is a “public accommodation” under the ADA;
- (b) Whether Wilson.com is a “place or provider of public accommodation” under the laws of New York;
- (c) Whether Defendant, through its website, Wilson.com, denies the full and equal enjoyment of its goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations to people with visual disabilities in violation of the ADA; and
- (d) Whether Defendant, through its website, Wilson.com, denies the full and equal enjoyment of its goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations to people with visual disabilities in violation of the law of New York.

48. The claims of the named Plaintiff are typical of those of the class. The class, similar to the Plaintiff, is severely visually-impaired or otherwise blind, and claims Wilson has violated the ADA, and/or the laws of New York by failing to update or remove access barriers on their website, Wilson.com, so it can be independently accessible to the class of people who are legally blind.
49. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the members of the Class because Plaintiff has retained and is represented by counsel competent and experienced in complex class action litigation, and because Plaintiff has no interests antagonistic to the members of the class. Class certification of the claims is appropriate pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2) because Defendant has acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the Class, making appropriate both declaratory and injunctive relief with respect to Plaintiff and the Class as a whole.
50. Alternatively, class certification is appropriate under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) because questions of law and fact common to Class members clearly predominate over questions affecting only individual class members, and because a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this litigation.

51. Judicial economy will be served by maintenance of this lawsuit as a class action in that it is likely to avoid the burden that would be otherwise placed upon the judicial system by the filing of numerous similar suits by people with visual disabilities throughout the United States.
52. References to Plaintiff shall be deemed to include the named Plaintiff and each member of the class, unless otherwise indicated.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(Violation of 42 U.S.C. §§ 12181 et seq. – Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act)

53. Plaintiff repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 56 of this Complaint as though set forth at length herein.
54. Title III of the American with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. § 12182(a) provides that “No individual shall be discriminated against on the basis of disability in the full and equal enjoyment of the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations of any place of public accommodation by any person who owns, leases (or leases to), or operates a place of public accommodation.” Title III also prohibits an entity from “[u]tilizing standards or criteria or methods of administration that have the effect of discriminating on the basis of disability.” 42 U.S.C. § 12181(b)(2)(D)(I).
55. Wilson.com is a sales establishment and public accommodation within the definition of 42 U.S.C. §§ 12181(7).
56. Defendant is subject to Title III of the ADA because it owns and operates Wilson.com.
57. Under Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(1)(A)(I), it is unlawful discrimination to deny individuals with disabilities or a class of individuals with disabilities the opportunity to participate in or benefit from the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations of an entity.
58. Under Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(1)(A)(II), it is unlawful discrimination to deny individuals with disabilities or a class of individuals with disabilities an opportunity to participate in or benefit from the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodation, which is equal to the opportunities afforded to other individuals.

59. Specifically, under Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(2)(A)(II), unlawful discrimination includes, among other things, “a failure to make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures, when such modifications are necessary to afford such goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations to individuals with disabilities, unless the entity can demonstrate that making such modifications would fundamentally alter the nature of such goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages or accommodations.”
60. In addition, under Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12182(b)(2)(A)(III), unlawful discrimination also includes, among other things, “a failure to take such steps as may be necessary to ensure that no individual with disability is excluded, denied services, segregated or otherwise treated differently than other individuals because of the absence of auxiliary aids and services, unless the entity can demonstrate that taking such steps would fundamentally alter the nature of the good, service, facility, privilege, advantage, or accommodation being offered or would result in an undue burden.”
61. There are readily available, well-established guidelines on the Internet for making websites accessible to the blind and visually-impaired. These guidelines have been followed by other business entities in making their websites accessible, including but not limited to ensuring adequate prompting and accessible alt-text. Incorporating the basic components to make their website accessible would neither fundamentally alter the nature of Defendant’s business nor result in an undue burden to Defendant.

62. The acts alleged herein constitute violations of Title III of the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq., and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Patrons of Wilson who are blind have been denied full and equal access to Wilson.com, have not been provided services that are provided to other patrons who are not disabled, and/or have been provided services that are inferior to the services provided to non-disabled patrons.
63. Defendant has failed to take any prompt and equitable steps to remedy its discriminatory conduct. These violations are ongoing.
64. As such, Defendant discriminates, and will continue in the future to discriminate against Plaintiff and members of the proposed class and subclass on the basis of disability in the full and equal enjoyment of the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, accommodations and/or opportunities of Wilson.com in violation of Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 12181 et seq. and/or its implementing regulations.
65. Unless the Court enjoins Defendant from continuing to engage in these unlawful practices, Plaintiff and members of the proposed class and subclass will continue to suffer irreparable harm.
66. The actions of Defendant were and are in violation of the ADA, and therefore Plaintiff invokes his statutory right to injunctive relief to remedy the discrimination.
67. Plaintiff is also entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.
68. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 12188 and the remedies, procedures, and rights set forth and incorporated therein, Plaintiff prays for judgment as set forth below.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Violation of New York State Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. Law Article 15 (Executive Law § 292 et seq.))

69. Plaintiff repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 72 of this Complaint as though set forth at length herein.
70. N.Y. Exec. Law § 296(2)(a) provides that it is “an unlawful discriminatory practice for any person, being the owner, lessee, proprietor, manager, superintendent, agent, or employee of any place of public accommodation . . . because of the . . . disability of any person, directly or indirectly, to refuse, withhold from or deny to such person any of the accommodations, advantages, facilities or privileges thereof.”
71. Wilson.com is a sales establishment and public accommodation within the definition of N.Y. Exec. Law § 292(9).
72. Defendant is subject to the New York Human Rights Law because it owns and operates Wilson.com. Defendant is a person within the meaning of N.Y. Exec. Law. § 292(1).
73. Defendant is violating N.Y. Exec. Law § 296(2)(a) in refusing to update or remove access barriers to Wilson.com, causing Wilson.com to be completely inaccessible to the blind. This inaccessibility denies blind patrons the full and equal access to the facilities, goods and services that Defendant makes available to the non-disabled public.
74. Specifically, under N.Y. Exec. Law § unlawful discriminatory practice includes, among other things, “a refusal to make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures, when such modifications are necessary to afford facilities, privileges, advantages or accommodations to individuals with disabilities, unless such person can demonstrate that making such modifications would fundamentally alter the nature of such facilities, privileges, advantages or accommodations.”

75. In addition, under N.Y. Exec. Law § 296(2)(c)(II), unlawful discriminatory practice also includes, “a refusal to take such steps as may be necessary to ensure that no individual with a disability is excluded or denied services because of the absence of auxiliary aids and services, unless such person can demonstrate that taking such steps would fundamentally alter the nature of the facility, privilege, advantage or accommodation being offered or would result in an undue burden.”
76. There are readily available, well-established guidelines on the Internet for making websites accessible to the blind and visually-impaired. These guidelines have been followed by other business entities in making their website accessible, including but not limited to: adding alt-text to graphics and ensuring that all functions can be performed by using a keyboard. Incorporating the basic components to make their website accessible would neither fundamentally alter the nature of Defendant’s business nor result in an undue burden to Defendant.
77. Defendant’s actions constitute willful intentional discrimination against the class on the basis of a disability in violation of the New York State Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. Law § 296(2) in that Defendant has:

- (a) constructed and maintained a website that is inaccessible to blind class members with knowledge of the discrimination; and/or
- (b) constructed and maintained a website that is sufficiently intuitive and/or obvious that is inaccessible to blind class members; and/or

(c) failed to take actions to correct these access barriers in the face of substantial harm and discrimination to blind class members.

78. Defendant has failed to take any prompt and equitable steps to remedy their discriminatory conduct. These violations are ongoing.
79. As such, Defendant discriminates, and will continue in the future to discriminate against Plaintiff and members of the proposed class and subclass on the basis of disability in the full and equal enjoyment of the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, accommodations and/or opportunities of Wilson.com under N.Y. Exec. Law § 296(2) et seq. and/or its implementing regulations. Unless the Court enjoins Defendant from continuing to engage in these unlawful practices, Plaintiff and members of the class will continue to suffer irreparable harm.
80. The actions of Defendant were and are in violation of the New York State Human Rights Law and therefore Plaintiff invokes his right to injunctive relief to remedy the discrimination.
81. Plaintiff is also entitled to compensatory damages, as well as civil penalties and fines pursuant to N.Y. Exec. Law § 297(4)(c) et seq. for each and every offense.
82. Plaintiff is also entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.
83. Pursuant to N.Y. Exec. Law § 297 and the remedies, procedures, and rights set forth and incorporated therein, Plaintiff prays for judgment as set forth below.
